

MEDEDITS WEBSITE RELAUNCHED WITH NEW DESIGN

Full Medical Admissions Service Offered to Students

The MedEdits website, designed to illustrate services MedEdits offers, has just relaunched with a whole new look. With the new website, it is now even easier for students to find the help they need when embarking on a medical career. MedEdits offers services to assist with postgraduate programs, medical school admissions, residency admissions, fellowship admissions and dental school admissions. MedEdits provides many different services, including editing packages, which enable more than one document to be edited and revised.

“The website is now much easier to use,” said a spokesman for the website. “Students can gain easy access to a list of the services provided in each area. For instance five services are offered for those looking to get help entering postgraduate programs, while nine services are offered for those seeking assistance with medical school admissions. We also offer an email newsletter so students can keep ahead of the latest developments on admissions.”

MedEdits Medical Admissions is the brainchild of Dr Jessica Freedman. She founded the company in 2008 after a successful career in academic medicine at The Mount Sinai School of Medicine. More than 94% of her comprehensive medical school clients have gained admission to medical schools in the United States thanks to the services provided by MedEdits. Dr Freedman has won multiple awards and has been selected for inclusion in Marquis Who’s Who in America for the past three years.

Dr Freedman is also the author of the Medical School Admissions Guide, which is now the bestselling book in its category on Amazon. The book includes inside information, full examples of various types of letters and details on many different aspects of trying to enter medical school. Those who have purchased it have given it outstanding reviews. She has also authored two other best-selling books, The Medical School Interview and The Residency Interview. She has been quoted multiple times in the popular press as an expert on medical admissions, including on CNN and in The Wall Street Journal, and The Village Voice.

MedEdits offers a free 15-minute consultation to all students residing in the US; it can be booked via the website. Students also can purchase their desired services easily and securely online through the user friendly system. Every service has full information and instructions on how to pay and receive the required service. This may involve making payment and receiving advice via Skype or a phone call, or sending the required document(s) to be edited via email.

The MedEdits website has been designed to provide all the support students need to gain admission to medical school, residency or fellowship. Dr Jessica Freedman and her team provide a full range of services, including general advising, personal statement and application editing, interview preparation and letter of intent editing. Learn more about MedEdits and its services by visiting <http://www.mededits.com/>

To find out more about Dr Jessica Freedman, MedEdits and the services it offers, visit the MedEdits website at <http://www.mededits.com> now. Alternatively, go to the contact page at <http://www.mededits.com/contact-us/>